GLOBAL HEALTH AND WELLNESS
(HSHS 1013)

Come study Global Health and Wellness with us on the Isle of Spice! Grenada will provide a wonderful backdrop for us to study global health and wellness on an island often recognized as a prototype of global health issues. This program is specifically designed for majors related to healthcare fields and pre-med students. This program will give students an understanding of how the global community is affected by changes in economic, political, and social factors.

“Understanding global health and wellness has never been more important.

By spending time studying abroad, students gain fresh perspectives that will profoundly enrich their global awareness.”

Jennifer Gresham-Anderson, Ed.D., RRT-NPS

FACILITIES

We will be hosting this program on the beautiful campus of St. George’s University. This medical, veterinary, and arts and sciences school will be our base of operations, providing classroom space, learning laboratories, and housing for our students and faculty. MSU faculty will teach all of our classes and they will be complemented by guest lecturers from St. George’s University and site visits to health and wellness facilities around the island.

Students will travel in a group accompanied by MSU faculty and staff. All students will be registered in MSU classes and will be expected to attend class daily and perform all class requirements while abroad. The program will last approximately 17 days, including travel time, and will take place in late May through early June.

Classes will run five days a week with some limited free time on the weekends. Program staff will plan some social and fun weekend activities for students as part of the program.
